NEW HAMPSHIRE TOWNS AND COUNTIES

COUNTY DEVELOPMENT

New Hampshire's early development is closely related to that of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. Massachusetts controlled New Hampshire from 1645 to 1680, when the New Hampshire towns were part of Essex County (1642), then Old Norfolk County (1643-1680). In 1680, when New Hampshire was separated, the towns in Old Norfolk became either parts of Essex County, Massachusetts, or part of New Hampshire. The records of the four original New Hampshire towns, Dover, Exeter, Hampton, and Portsmouth, would be found as part of the Old Norfolk County records, which are today located at Salem, Massachusetts.

Since many other New Hampshire towns separated from the original four, their records as part of the earlier towns would also be located at Salem, Massachusetts. The towns concerned are Brentwood, Danville, Durham, East Kingston, Epping, Fremont, Greenland, Hampton Falls, Kensington, Kingston, Lee, Madbury, New Castle, Newfields, Newington, Newton, Newmarket, North Hampton, Rollinsford, Rye, Sandown, Seabrook, Somersworth, South Hampton, and Stratham.

Massachusetts also controlled New Hampshire from 1685 to 1689, and from 1699 to 1734. At these times, however, New Hampshire records were kept separate from Massachusetts records, and are located at Portsmouth, New Hampshire.

Boundaries were uncertain between New Hampshire and Massachusetts, and in 1720, Massachusetts declared the Merrimac River to be the line. Both colonies began to grant land south and west of the river, causing confusion in land titles. Finally in 1741, the line was decided at the present location -- three miles north of the Merrimac River, as far west as the present town of Pelham, then generally west. At that time, Amesbury, Dracut, Haverhill and Methuen were divided, the northern parts of each town becoming part of New Hampshire.

Before 1771, all land and probate transactions were handled in Portsmouth, the capital of the Province. In 1771, the colony was divided into five counties: Cheshire, seat at Keene; Grafton, seat at Wodoville; Hillsborough, seat at Nashua; Rockingham, seat at Exeter; and Strafford, seat at Dover. In 1803, Coos (seat at Lancaster) was taken from Grafton. In 1823, Merrimack (seat at Concord) was taken from Grafton, Hillsborough and Rockingham. In 1827, Sullivan (seat at Newport) was taken from Cheshire. In 1842, Belknap (seat at Laconia) was taken from Strafford. Also in 1842, Carroll (seat at Ossipee) was taken from Coos and Strafford.

VITAL, LAND and PROBATE RECORDS

In New Hampshire, probate land records are handled on the county basis, while vital records are available both from the town involved and from the state. Vital records are available in Concord, which has birth records from 1640 to 1901, and marriage and death records from 1640 to 1938 on a statewide basis. The researcher may also write to the individual town involved; however, Concord would be a better choice if several records from different towns are needed.

For deeds statewide from 1623 to 1771, as well as many other records, write the New Hampshire Records and Archives Center, 71 South Fruit St, Concord, 03301.

For vital records, write the New Hampshire Bureau of Vital Records and Health Statistics, Hazen Drive, Concord, 03301.

TOWN LISTINGS

On the following pages, the reader will find information on each of Vermont's towns and cities. For each entry, the following information may be found if applicable:

1. Name of the town or city, and its present county.
2. Date of the grant, incorporation, or settlement of the town.
3. Town(s) from which it was taken.
4. Town(s) which were taken from it.
5. Former name(s) of the town.
6. Local names -- railroad stations, post offices, villages, etc.
7. The county of which the town was formerly a part, with dates. Remember that before 1771, all province business in land and will transactions were handled in Portsmouth, and that these records will be found in either Exeter or at the Records and Archives Center in Concord.

Towns are listed in CAPITAL letters, while former towns, most of which were absorbed by other towns, are listed in lower case.

An index follows, which lists each place named, and the town in which it is located.

declared herself to be a separate Republic in 1777, and received no aid during the war from the Congress. As another attention getter, as a republic Vermont proceeded to annex several New Hampshire towns, and called this annexation the "Eastern Union." Vermont actually did this twice, the first union from June 1778 to February 1779, and the second union in 1781.

The towns included in each union were as follows:

The First Eastern Union, 1778-1779: Bath, Canaan, Cornish, Dalton, Easton, Enfield, Franconia, Hanover, Haverhill, Landaff, Lebanon, Lisbon, Littleton, Lyman, Lyme, Monroe, Orange, Orford, Piermont, Sugar Hill.

The Eastern Unions with Vermont

At the time of the American Revolution, the land which now comprises the state of Vermont was claimed by both New Hampshire and New York. In actuality, New Hampshire's claims had been denied by King George III in 1763, but the claim was still being pressed by many New Hampshire citizens.

When revolution broke out, Vermont requested admission to the United States, separate from New York, but the request was either denied or ignored each year until 1791. Mostly to gain the attention of the Congress, Vermont

The Second Eastern Union, 1781: Acworth, Alstead, Bath, Charlestown, Claremont, Cornish, Croydon, Dalton, Dorchester, Easton, Franconia, Gilsum, Grafton, Grantham, Hanover, Haverhill, Hinsdale, Lancaster, Landaff, Langdon, Lebanon, Lempster, Lincoln, Lisbon, Littleton, Lyman, Lyme, Monroe, Newport, Orange, Piermont, Plainfield, Richmond, Sugar Hill, Sunapee, Surry, Walpole, Westmoreland.

While vital records of these towns during the Union period would probably still be in the towns, deeds and probate records may be located in Vermont. A check with the Vermont Historical Society or Vermont State Library might be in order for persons doing research in the above towns for the 1778-79 and 1781 periods.

INDEX

In this index, the reader will find all the place names listed in the towns section. If the entry is capitalized, it is an incorporated city or town. If then entry is not capitalized, it is either an unincorporated place, followed by the page number on which it is found, or a local or former name, which is followed by the town or city in which it is located, then the page number on which it is found.
